Decorative fonts in five styles

Bouclé is a monoline decorative typeface family of three subfamilies – Plain, Round and Loopy. Plain and Round come in two weights – regular and bold.

Bouclé Plain, as its name states, has minimal decorative features in comparison with Bouclé Round, and especially Bouclé Loopy. Thus, Bouclé Plain fonts could be better used for display text purposes. Round and Loopy fonts are reserved for highly decorative cases.

Popcorn first became available at movie theaters way back in 1912.

Apparently back in the old days, popcorn vendors would "set up shop" outside theaters. The theater managers didn't like this, thinking it was a distraction. But moviegoers disagreed, frequently ducking out to buy popcorn and then ducking back in to see the movie.

Type in use
Boucle Loopy 40 pt.
Boucle Plain 15/23 pt.
